The Data Protection Act 1998

Fair Processing Notice (Schedule 1 Section 2 Subsection 1(a) and Section 3).

UK GDPR and Data Protection Act 2018 Fair Processing Notice (Schedule 1, Section 2, Subsection 1(a) and Section 3). Local Authorities hold information on children and young people to provide education and care services and in doing so must comply with the UK GDPR and Data Protection Act 2018 This means, amongst other things that the data must only be used for specific purposes allowed by law. We are therefore writing to tell you about the types of data held, why that data is held, and with whom it may be shared.

The Local Authority (LA) uses information about children to carry out specific functions for which it is responsible, such as the assessment of special educational needs, home to school transport requirements, admissions, pupil welfare, children looked after, exclusions and early years support. Anonymised information is used to derive statistics, to inform decisions on (for example) the funding of schools, to assess school performance and track service provision. Information may be kept on file for up to eight years after a child has left school. Information collected may be exchanged with other council departments and Children's Services (for example other Local Authorities and the Local Health Authority) where there is a statutory requirement, or it is deemed to be of benefit to the child. To make sure children receive the services that they need, the Department for Education (DfE) plan to create a list of all children by bringing together data from different Children's Services.

In preparation for this, Bristol City Council's People Directorate plans to gather information held locally to allow professionals working with a child to find out who else is involved. Children and young people, as data subjects, have certain rights under the Data Protection Act, including a general right of access to personal data held on them, with parents exercising this right on their behalf if they are too young to do so themselves. If you wish to access the personal data held about your child, please contact Bristol City Council in writing: Data Protection Officer, Bristol City Council, PO Box 3399, Bristol, BS1 9NE
